LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

DO you speak to the boy you meet on the streets, or in your place of business? Do you extend any recognition at all to the boys with whom you come in contact daily? What do you know about our boys, anyway?

You realize that today's boy has more spare time on his hands than you had when you were a boy. You know that a boy is full of energy and that this energy finds an outlet in one form or another. Of course you do. But does it ever occur to you that you can be of real help to these boys?

All the great boys work agencies in the world (and we have some excellent ones) can not do as much for the boy as can the individual man. As a matter of fact the greatest work accomplished by these various agencies has been in training men to work with boys—to bring them to a gretaer appreciation of the boy and his problems.

Boys are wiser than most men give them credit for being. It is remarkable how quickly the grown-up loses memory of his boyhood desires and habits. The average man does not want to tolerate the boyish pranks he himself indulged in not many years ago. "Get away from here, you little brat" is often the retort of the grown-up. It would be as easy to speak kindly and counsel with the boy and would produce much better results.

The greatest need of the average boy in Paris and elsewhere is for a "big brother" who will be his chum. This "big brother" may be his dad or it may be any good man who has not forgotten that a few years ago he himself was a boy.

Were it not for the Boy Scouts movement the boys of this day and time would be found in more trouble than the boys of any other generation. Not that the boys are worse (they are not) but because they do not have to split kindling, carry in wood, milk the cows and do numerous other chores which are now done by the turn of a switch or by pressing a button.

The Boy Scout movement gives the boy something useful and helpful to do—shows him how to make work a game—how to have fun and to grow strong and healthy and manly and enjoy the whole program. But man-leadership is needed by the Scouting movement and by every other program dealing with boys.

So, let's pay a little more attention to the boys. Soon they will be men and this generation will have a great deal to do with the kind of men they make.

More daddies are pals to their boys today than ever before and more mothers are the confiding chums of their daughters than ever before.

The world is full of folks who claim they can not take the lead: they can not speak or lead a songfest or take the spotlight. But anybody can be a friend to boys and girls and there is joy and satisfaction in it.

Late Collection Of Mail to Be Made Down Town

A late collection from the letter-boxes in the business district directly after 6 o'clock each week-day evening, so that mail may be dispatched on the 9:30 o'clock mail truck to Greenville, has been authorized by the Post Office department, according to an announcement of J. J. Dickerson, postmaster.

Lobby doors of the post office are locked each week-day night at 12 o'clock and not opened until 4 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Dickerson said. Sunday nights the doors are locked at 11 o'clock. Letters posted in the letter-box at southwest corner of the post office building will be picked up for the first morning dispatch.

Government Estimate Of Cotton Crop Highest For Date In 16 Years

15,685,000 Bales Forecast For This Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8, (AP)—President Hoover Tuesday sought a way out for American cotton growers, buried under the highest September crop estimate in 16 years.

Eugene Meyer, chairman of the federal reserve board, and William L. Clayton of Houston, Texas, a leading cotton merchant, were called to the white house as the official September estimate of the department of agriculture forecast 15,685,000 bales.

May Carry Over Cotton.

Observers believed the president was looking for a way to carry out a scheme advanced by some southern senators under which the government would carry over several million bales of this year's crop for those farmers who agree not to plant any cotton next year.

Senator Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, who conferred recently with the president is known to favor such a plan. Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, came here Tuesday to press such a proposal upon Mr. Hoover.

No Announcement.

No announcement, however, was forthcoming from the white house where George R. James of Tennessee, a member of the federal reserve board joined in the conferences late in the day.

Under the Smith-Caraway proposal, the cotton farmers would be financed for a share of this year's surplus, sell the cotton next year and take the difference between prevailing low prices and the increased price expected to result next year from their refusal to plant new crops.

Senator Caraway would have the government buy 5,000,000 bales at not less than 8 cents a

HUEY LONG NOT TO ATTEND MEET IN AUSTIN TODAY

Lieutenant Governor Refuses to Agree Not to Assume Office

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 8 (AP) Governor Huey Long Tuesday night in a radio address in support of his cotton holiday legislation said that he would be unable to attend a cotton relief mass meeting Wednesday night in Austin, Texas, because of Lieutenant Governor Paul Cyr's refusal to sign a promise that he would not attempt to act as governor or take the gubernatorial oath of office during his absence.

Governor Long said, however, that he would address the Austin meeting by radio, by means of amplifiers in the meeting hall, and would be personally represented by O. K. Allen, chairman of the Louisiana highway commission, who he said would be elected the next governor of Louisiana "by 100,000 votes."

In Peculiar Position.

Governor Long explained that he was "in a peculiar position" as he had promised during his campaign for the United States senate that he would not allow Cyr to become governor, and that his friends were urging him to keep his promise and not leave the state.

"Texas must act on this cotton plan," he exclaimed, "and how I would like to go to Texas tomorrow!"

The governor began his talk by expressing the hope that he could leave early Wednesday by airplane for Austin.

Son's Confession Futile As Mother Convicted In Death

NEW YORK, Sept. 8, (AP)—Despite the attempt of a 28-year old son to save his mother by confessing the crime with which she was charged, Mrs. Anna De Hall was sentenced Tuesday to 25 years imprisonment for the murder of another son.

The gray and slightly bent woman of 54 was convicted of having slashed the throat of her boy Salvatore, 16, as he lay asleep in their home November 24, 1930.

Other Son Takes Blame.

Michael Filosa, the other son, a half-brother of the victim, in his effort to shoulder the blame, volunteered a story of having committed the killing while walking in his sleep. He was convicted of murder but will be released.

Mrs. De Hall, brought before County Judge Alonzo McLaughlin Tuesday for sentence, burst into wild hysterical screams.

Two court attendants quieted her long enough for Judge McLaughlin to inform her that she must spend at least 25 years of her life in prison for murder in the second degree and an additional five to ten years on a separate conviction for carrying dangerous weapons.

VAN ANDERSON PICKED TO HEAD DISABLED VETS

Results of Membership Drive Will Be Checked At Meet Tuesday

Election of Van D. Anderson as Commander of the newly organized charter of Disabled World War Veterans was announced Tuesday night following a meeting of the chapter in the county courtroom. J. M. Lyles was elected vice-commander, and James E. Thoms, adjutant and finance officer. James A. McEwin was appointed chairman of the membership canvassing committee, assisted by Rome Cherry.

Results of the membership campaign will be checked and final instructions given the newly elected officers at a meeting to be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the county courtroom. The membership now is approximately 20.

W. L. Shaddix, national deputy chief of staff of the organization, who has been assisting in the organization of the local chapter will leave Wednesday for Texarkana. Mr. Shaddix, accompanied by his wife, began his tour of Texas last March in Beaumont and finished with the establishment of the local chapter here. He has traveled more than 10,000 miles in the state and visited firty cities.

Kiwanians End Convention.

Dies of Injuries.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 8 (AP).—Miss Merle Moore, 18, of Ferris, Texas, died in a Dallas hospital Tuesday of injuries received when the automobile in which she was riding overturned near Dallas.

One Killed in Collision.

MIDLAND, Texas, Sept. 8 (AP).—One woman was killed and two persons seriously injured when the truck on which they were riding to a church picnic overturned here Monday night.

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 8 (AP).—Sixty-eight persons were injured here Tuesday night as a street car returning from a firemen's field day overturned after hitting an open switch.

200 REGISTER IN JUNIOR COLLEGE

Same Faculty Will Return To Class Rooms As In 1930

Governor Long continued to in-

About 200 students signed registration blanks at the Paris Junior college Tuesday for the fall term of the 1931-32 school year, officials said Tuesday night. The freshmen enrolled in the morning and seniors in the afternoon.

Students who couldn't enroll on Tuesday will be allowed to do so Wednesday.

The same instructors will teach this year. Miss Mary Agnes McFarland will head the English department with Miss Hope Ridings as assistant, Mrs. Sterling Kelton will teach history. Mrs. Lennie George is to instruct shorthand. W. H. Freeman will teach accounting business administration courses and economics. T. E. Gal will have Spanish and government courses. E. McMullen will again be science instructor. Dean J. R. McLemore will teach most of the Spanish and French courses. Miss Rena Smith is again mathematics and Latin instructor. Miss Mary Evans is to be the home economics teacher. J. H. Newton will teach education. J. E. Shaw will teach music. R. H. Berry and Hub Hollis are to direct athletics.

Regular classes will start Friday.

American Legion Assumes Role In Unemployment War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (AP)—The American Legion assumed a leading role in the nation-wide war on unemployment Tuesday with the announcement it has called a conference of governors, mayors and representatives of labor, capital and industry to consider the problem here September 14.

Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander, said the "full strength and influence" of the Legion would be offered to President Hoover's unemployment relief organization and municipal, state and other governmental agencies to aid in preventing distress.

Invitations to the conference were extended to all state governors and mayors of the 15 largest cities and other municipalities where big public projects have been started.

"One main purpose of the conference," O'Neil said, "Is to get ideas and suggestions that will enable the Legion's national unemployment commission to be most effective.

"We believe the Legion through the agencies of its many posts can be very effective in helping to solve this very serious problem which now confronts our nation.

Self Styled Gangster Says He Killed College Student

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 8. (AP)—John Markham, 21-year-old self-styled Illinois gangster, confessed to Chief of Police Albert T. Clark Tuesday he killed Stanley M. Moore, 21, student at the Michigan College of Mines whom he picked up as a hitch hiker.

Markham told Clark, Moore became suspicious the automobile in which they were riding had been stolen, and added:

"Why shouldn't I have killed him? He was going to turn me in."

Clark said Markham confessed he killed Moore on a lonely road near Holyoke, Colo., but denied any knowledge of the slaying of Cecil Pruitt, alias Lyal Berry, in Kansas City. In Tuesday's statement Markham repudiated an earlier admission in which he asserted a Chicago gangster with whom he was traveling killed both the student and Pruitt.

Pruitt's body was discovered Sunday behind a Kansas City pool hall, located near a garage from which Markham admitted he stole a $4,000 automobile for his trip to Denver. Clark said he was convinced Markham was alone at the time Moore was slain but believes he had two companions when he stole the automobile.

MacDonald Government Gets Confidence Vote Of Commons

LONDON, Sept. 8. (AP)—Ramsay MacDonald's new national government, formed to pull Great Britain through its financial crisis, won its first battle Tuesday night by gaining a vote of confidence from the house of commons with a majority of 59.

The house, which convened in special session Tuesday, voted 309 to 250 in support of the new MacDonald cabinet, made up of members from the labor conservative and liberal parties.

12 Labor Members Vote

Voting with the majority were 12 labor members, including Prime Minister MacDonald, Chancellor Snowden, J. H. Thomas and four other ministers. All the conservatives and liberals supported the government, as did three of the independent members.

Three other independents, including Oliver Baldwin, son of the conservative leader, voted against the government. The four Moseley members supported the opposition and three labor members abstained from voting.

The vote came after an all day debate which started with a memorable oratorical duel between the prime minister and Arthur Henderson, his old labor colleague and now leader of the opposition.

Atmosphere Cleared

It was taken on a resolution calling for the house to resolve itself into a committee of ways and means on Thursday for the

GOP COMMITTEE FUNDS PINCHED, REPORT REVEALS

September First Balance Nearly $40,000 Under Figure for June 1st

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (AP)—The Republican national committee is feeling the pitch of hard times together with its Democratic opposition.

The report of the Republicans for the last three months filed with the clerk of the house Tuesday showed a balance of $14,324 on Sept. 1 as compared with a balance on June 1 of $53,062.

Joseph R. Nutt, the treasurer of the Republican committee collected $33,719 for the period but expenditures amounted to $72,662.

Principal contributors and amounts were William C. Chamberlain, Chicago, $5,000; Orlando F. Weber, New York, $5,000; Julius Forstmann, Passaic, New Jersey, $5,000; George M. Moffett, New York, $2,500; Roy O. West, Chicago, $1,500.

Hugoans Reverse Order Of Things; Are Wed In Paris

"It's a poor rule that doesn't work both ways," says Dr. Harold G. Cooke, who officiated at a wedding ceremony Tuesday evening for a Hugo, Okla., couple, the first marriage he has performed in eleven months pastorate here at the First Methodist church.

Hundreds of North Texas couples and others from much farther points have made Hugo a Gretna Green ever since the Texas marriage license law, requiring three days' notice, went into effect, so Dr. Cooke felt that when he tied the official knot for Sidney A. Hillhouse and Miss Mary Jim Chandler of Hugo, that it was only a well merited reciprocity.

Ministers and justices of counties along Red river have suffered loss of considerable patronage from marriage-minded couples during the period, since the proximity of Hugo connected with Paris by the interstate bridge made the legal delay occasioned in Texas a negligible matter.

Mr. Hillhouse is a brother of Joe Hillhouse, county clerk of Lamar county.

OFFICER SLAIN; 'LEGGERS BLAMED

Victim Had Been Active In War on Prohibition Violators

BERNARDSVILLE, N. J., Sept. 8, (AP)—Police chief Charles B. Cavanaugh, 36, was fatally shot from ambush while on the porch of his home Tuesday.

Local and state police expressed the belief the killing was in reprisal for Cavanaugh's activities against bootleggers. Tuesday they held for questioning Samuel Pastrich, convicted last May of operating a speakeasy after a raid which also brought under arrest the police chief's brother, Frank. Pastrich and Frank were each fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 8 (AP).—One man was slain and another probably fatally wounded in a shooting affray at Jaluska gin near Violet, 12 miles west of here.

ENROLLMENT TO START THURSDAY

4,000 Will Be Enrolled In Public Schools By Friday Night

By Friday afternoon more than 4,000 children will be enrolled in the public schools of Paris for the 1931-32 school year. Enrollment will be made Thursday for the ward schools and Thursday and Friday for high school.

All ward school students are to meet at their respective schools in 9 o'clock Thursday morning to be enrolled by their teachers and principal. In the ward schools this year the departmental system will be used in the upper grades.

For the high school all senior students will meet at the building Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. The juniors will be registered and assigned to classes Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Friday morning at 8 o'clock all sophomores will report to the high school and Friday afternoon the freshmen class will be enrolled.

Invitation To Enter League Of Nations Is Given Mexico

Assembly's Cordial Action Described As Rectification Of Error

GENEVA, Sept. 8. (AP)—An invitation to Mexico to enter the League of Nations was extended Tuesday by the league's assembly, which also heard foreign minister Dino Grandi of Italy propose an immediate armaments truce to be effective until the end of next year's disarmament conference.

The invitation to Mexico was delivered with a manifestation of friendship for that republic and and in the confident expectation that the Mexican government would accept it and soon adhere to the league covenant.

Rectification of "Error"

The assembly's cordial action was described by statesmen as a rectification of an unfortunate "error" by which the league organizers 12 years ago omitted Mexico from the list of states invited to membership.

President Wilson was said to have played a large part in excluding Mexico from the league. Associated with him in this action, which the assembly Tuesday deplored, was Lord Cecil of England who said Tuesday:

Lauds Mexican People

"That omission has lasted much too long and I am not sure that I ought not to acknowledge that I was in part, I suppose, to blame. It therefore gives me particular pleasure to take part in remedying an omission which never should have been made."

He described the Mexicans as a people of "remarkable energy and self reliance."

"This is the happiest day of my life," responded Martinez de Alba, Mexican observer.

AMERICAN FLIERS BELIEVED NEAR END OF JAUNT

Officials Believe Monoplane Outraced Storm Blowing From Nome

TOKYO, Sept. 8, (AP)—Two fearless Americans, Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, although unsighted since shortly after leaving Samushiro at 5:30 a. m. Tuesday (3:30 p. m. Monday E. S. T.) were believed to be nearing the North American mainland Tuesday night on the first non-stop Pacific flight between Japan and America.

Their monoplane was thought by officials to have outraced a storm blowing down from Nome. The plane was scheduled to have passed over the Aleutian Islands at about midnight and to be crossing the Gulf of Alaska.

Predictions were made the aviators would finish their 4465 mile flight at Seattle or some inland field between 7 a. m. and noon Wednesday, Pacific coast time, to win the $25,000 offered by the Tokyo newspaper Asahi for the first continuous flight between Japan and America.

The fact that no word of sighting them aroused no pessimism, experts praised the performance of the plane in lifting its weight of 11,500 pounds from the sands at Samushiro.

Capone Gets Permission To Change Plea In Prohi Case

CHICAGO, Sept. 8, (AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, facing trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and of evading the income tax law, was granted permission Tuesday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to change his plea of guilty in the liquor case to not guilty.

The ruling was made at an unexpected hearing in Judge Wilkerson's chambers, the jurist recently having announced that the hearing, originally scheduled for Tuesday, would not be held until Sept. 10.

Court Unable to Concur

In a memorandum the judge explained the change in pleas was being allowed because the defendant had agreed to plead guilty under compromise agreement with the prosecution in which the court could not concur.

The gang leader was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty to the income tax evasion charge last July 31, the day he was to have been sentenced. At that time, Judge Wilkerson announced he would hear evidence in the liquor case, apparently discrediting the agreement for leniency entered into by Capone and the prosecution.

CONSERVATION IN EAST TEXAS NOW ROUTINE MATTER

Nearly 600 Guardsmen Withdrawn From Area Tuesday

KILGORE, Tex., Sept. 8, (AP)—Enforced conservation of crude oil and gas in the rich East Texas oil field settled down to routine Tuesday with the withdrawal of nearly 600 national guardsmen. A regulatory force of but 150 militiamen remained to administer the state railroad commission's proration order in the 600 square mile area.

No Resistance Expected

Operators of the 1850 wells in the field accepted the will of the railroad commission and limited production from each well to approximately 225 barrels daily. Output of the field, which less than a month ago drove the oil market to disastrous low levels at last seemed to be regulated in accordance with official decree.

Gen. Jacob Wolters, commander of the troops enforcing martial law in the field expected to meet with no resistance in carrying out the railroad commission's orders.

Humor Marks Departure

Daily production of the field, since resumption of pumping, has been officially estimated at over 400,000 barrels. Final figures for Saturday, the first day the proration order was tested, have not been totaled.

The evacuation of nearly 600 militiamen Tuesday morning was marked with much cheering and high humor.

Local Cotton

Receipts Tuesday, 62 bales; receipts last Saturday, 226 bales; total for season, 664 bales. Prices Tuesday, 5 3-4 to 6 cents.

The Weather

Maximum temperature for Paris Tuesday, 95 degrees; minimum 77.

East Texas: Generally fair and continued warm Wednesday and Thursday. Moderate southeasterly winds on the coast.

Oklahoma: Partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday, continued warm, except cooler in northwest portion Thursday.

West Texas: Partly cloudy and continued warm Wednesday and Thursday.

Sterling's Message Comes On Heels Of Estimate

AUSTIN, Sept. 8, (AP)—Cotton leaders of the south centered their attention Tuesday night upon the Texas capitol, where the legislature was convened in special session Tuesday by Governor Ross S. Sterling with the exhortation to enact cotton reduction laws that would "light the way for the Southland out of the darkness that now engulfs it."

Governor Sterling's message was read in both houses of the legislature only a few hours after the federal department of agriculture at Washington had issued a new production estimate which gave little comfort to alarmed cotton growers. The estimate of 15,685,000 bales was the highest September forecast since 1915. The futures markets, however, were little affected. After slight declines when trading was resumed, the New York market closed one to three points net higher. The New Orleans close was uneven.

Long Plan First.

The first cotton bill of the legislative calendar was the plan sponsored by Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana for complete cotton planting prohibition in 1932, embodied in a bill introduced by Rep. Victor Gilbert of Cisco. Rep. Gordon M. Burns of Huntsville introduced a bill calling for 50 per cent reduction in acreage. Several other bills were in preparation both in the house and senate, although the upper house spent the afternoon in organization.

Governor Sterling's message to the lawmakers declared that nothing less than an acute emergency

ADVENTURE BOUND BOY RETURNS TO HARRIED PARENTS

Believed Kidnaped, He Tells of 3,000 Mile Hitch Hiking Tour

NEW YORK, Sept. 8, (AP)—Edgar F. Hazelton, Jr., 16 year old son of a former judge who had been believed kidnaped, returned Tuesday from a 3,000 mile adventure trip through the south and middle west.

His parents brought him back to Northport, Long Island, by automoble from Harrisburg, Pa., where he was recognized Monday by a detective near the end of his long trek home.

His father, former municipal judge Edgar F. Hazelton, said he had received communications saying the boy had been kidnaped and was being held for $25,000 ransom.

The father said the boy had become intrigued by a hitch hikers' description of traveling and toured the south with a companion known only as "Red."

In Mobile he read a newspaper account of extortionists demands on his father and went home through New Orleans and Chicago on a freight train and as a passenger train stowaway.

Speed Records For Men And Women Withstand Assault

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8, (AP)—World and American speed records for land planes for men and women withstood the assaults of J. R. Wedell of Patterson, La., and Miss Maude Irving Tait, of Springfield, Mass., at Cleveland airport Tuesday.

Miss Tait failed by only 1½ miles an hour to equal the women's world and American record of 210.64, held by Miss Ruth Nich-

Daughter Dies; Shock Is Fatal To Her Mother

After accompanying the body of her daughter from Paris to Ben Franklin, Mrs. Georgia Burr, 57, dropped dead at her home there Tuesday. Her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Griffis, 32-year-old, died at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Sanitarium of Paris where she had been a patient about five weeks.

Funeral services for the two will be held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Ben Franklin Methodist church with the Rev. F. P. Broyles officiating.

Mrs. Griffis is survived by her husband, two children, her father and two brothers.

MURDER CHARGE IN JONES DEATH

Walter Shanks of Dallas Is Charged In Death Of Houston Man

HOUSTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—A charge of murder was filed against Walter Shanks of Dallas Tuesday in connection with the slaying of Chester Alvin "Keggy" Jones. He was held without bond.

At the time the charge was lodged against Shanks he awaited a hearing on habeas corpus proceedings. His attorney instituted habeas corpus proceedngs on the grounds Shanks was held illegally as no formal charge was filed against him.

As officials haggled with Robert Allen, the attorney, over beginning the proceedings, District Attorney O'Brien Stevens entered with a warrant, announcing a charge of murder had been filed against Shanks.

The habeas corpus case was then called, the state offering the warrant for Shanks' arrest in evidence. The defense did not offer any testimony

Bale and a Half On Some Acres Of Landers Farm

ROXTON, Sept. 8.— Mr. and Mrs. Knox Landers have two families of cotton pickers in the house with them. Mr. Landers says he has cotton that will make all the way from one-half to one and one-half bales per acre.

John Page who said he had not been in Roxton in twenty years, came in Monday from East Texas and was shaking hands with old friends on the street.

Rev. C. D. Hardy changed the prayer service from Wednesday to Monday evening. He and Mrs. Hardy went back to Paris to resume work in the revival at Immanuel Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelton McAmis spent Sunday in Honey Grove.

Miss Bessie Johnson has gone to Dallas to visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Groce Roden and children of Paris visited west of town Monday.

The Women's Missionary society met at the Methodist church Monday. A feature of the meeting was a handkerchief shower for Mrs. C. C. Westbrook, one of their members, who is leaving this week. Mrs. J. H. Scrimshire of Cooper wife of a former pastor of the church, was a guest.

Members of the W. H. D. and community clubs, our fair director with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dunagan of Paris, guests at the meeting, congregated at the club hall Monday evening to discuss the exhibit from Roxton. The general farm exhibit was eventually voted down.

The bank and post office here observed Labor Day.

Miss Jewel Thomas has returned to Dallas.

Milton Ellis has been suffering from chills.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cooper and Miss Mildred Cooper have returned to Waco.

Mrs. Guy Dean and children and Miss Lena Mae Hawkes were here Monday from Dallas.

Billie Fae Ellis is unimproved.

A., Miss Hazel Snell, Y. W. A. Miss Rose Dunlap; Next Monday the study will be the last lesson in "A Decade of W. M. U. Service."

Miss Marguerite Richey has gone to Flynn where she will teach.

Frank Sanford has returned to Dallas.

Miss Eleanor Endsley in training at the Sanitarium of Paris, came home quite ill.

Mrs. C. C. Westbrook and children have gone to Wynnewood Okla., where Mr. Westbrook is station agent of the G. C. and S. F.

At the THEATERS

Screendom's "Little Caesar" has laid down his gun, and is doing his shooting with dice now. Or in other words, Edward G. Robinson may be seen at the Lamar Theatre in "Smart Money", Thursday and Friday, the story of a gambling fool who was strong at dice, but weak with the dames. James Cagney ("The Public Enemy" himself) and Evelyn Knapp, heads the large cast appearing in Robison's support.

At the Plaza

"The one thing that makes Will Rogers the outstanding film star of today is his own ability to make audiences forget that he is a comedian."

The above statement was made by Frank Borzage, while he was directing Rogers in his new Fox picture, "Young As You Feel," which opens tomorrow at the Plaza theater for three days.

"This quality of his becomes very apparent," continued Borzage "in scenes where Rogers is called upon to portray the simple human emotions that touch the very soul of mankind. The sincerity and conviction with which he does them is what we might expect of a great tragedian. Audiences forget Rogers as a wisecracker and think of him as a human being torn with emotion. And I know, for "Young As You Feel" is the second Rogers picture I have directed, the first being "They Had to See Paris"— and I have sat with audiences during the showing of every Fox picture Rogers ever made."

Another favorite of Borzage's is in the cast of "Young As You Feel." She is Fifi Dorsay, who made her talking picture debut under his direction in "They Had to See Paris." In the present Rogers production she has the leading feminine role, that of a young French dancer, who makes Rogers, in the character of the old, woe-begone and dyspeptic millionaire meat packer forget his years and troubles and rejuvenates him into such a fast stepper that his two spirited sons are soon outdistanced.

Lucien Littlefield is another noted comedian who is to be seen in support of Rogers. Other members of the well balanced cast are Donald Dillaway, Terrance Ray, Lucile Browne, Rosalie Roy, C. Henry Gordon and Brandon Hurst.

"Young As You Feel" is the talking screen's version of the famous stage play, "Father and the Boys," which was written by the eminent humorist and slang linguist, George Ade. The screen play was adapted in continuity and dialog by Edwin Burke, and according to advance reports from critics who have already seen it, the photoplay suits Rogers' homely style of wit and philosophy much better than any of the previous Rogers' successes.

At the Lamar

Edward G. Robinson, whose genius for dynamic characterization was so perfectly demonstrated in "Little Caesar"—quits gunning and takes to gaming in "Smart Money"—starting tomorrow at the Lamar theatre for a two day engagement which was written by those masters of the melodramatic Kubec Glasmon and John Bright who did "The Public Enemy" which recently brought James Cagney into the small company of the elect of talking pictures.

Mr. Robinson plays the part of Nick the Greek, a small town barber who runs crap-games in the room back of his tonsorial parlor —and considers life to be nothing else than one glorious round of gambling and girls—the latter to be, without exception, of blonde persuasion.

Nick has delusions of grandeur, and to make them come true, he beats it to the big town to look up the big shots in the gaming field, and to begin his operations. The first blonde he meets doublecrosses him. She gets him in touch with not the king of the sharpers, as he had hoped, but one of the lesser fry.

Blondes are always bobbing up and out— and Nick finally meets the czar, trims him at poker and so grows in power and possessions. His finish is in the making—when he takes in a blonde who has been trying to commit suicide—but that is the story—a vital part at least of a story which holds the spectator spellbound from the strange beginning to the startling climax.

The weight of the earth is estimated to be 6,000 billions of billions of tons.

Hurk and Mark Jones went to Prescott, Ark., and brought a number of cotton pickers.

Test it at our risk

Please don't take our word for these statements. All we ask is that you make the economy test yourself and be the exclusive judge.

Order a pound of Maxwell House at your grocer's. Prepare it in your usual way. Then if you and your family don't agree that it is the finest coffee you ever drank; if you don't find that it is real economy compared with weaker, Oxygen-robbed coffees, simply return the can with unused portion to the grocer from whom you bought it and he will return your money.

Oxygen can't hijack Maxwell House flavor

That's why the new* VITA-FRESH *Process is winning new friends for this famous coffee

ONCE you have tried your first can of Maxwell House packed by the new Vita-Fresh method, you will realize why you have never been quite sure about your coffee.

For Maxwell House, packed this new scientific way, is always uniform in strength and flavor. Because it is strictly fresh, not robbed of its precious fragrance and aroma by Oxygen, you can follow the simple directions on the package and get a superb cup of coffee every time.

Coffee flavor is highly perishable. Air (Oxygen) robs coffee of its strength and flavor.

Just read these amazing facts established in the laboratories of a leading Eastern University:

(1) Loose or bag coffee loses 65% of its flavor in nine days after roasting.

(2) Coffee in old-fashioned cans loses 45% of its flavor in nine days after roasting.

All due to the attack of Oxygen.

Think of it! Forty-five to sixty-five per cent of the flavor gone from nine-day-old coffee. Even vacuum packing, a definite improvement over old-fashioned methods, removes only part of the air from the can, leaving sealed in enough Oxygen to cause flavor loss and deterioration.

The new Vita-Fresh Process removes the air so completely that the most rigid chemical analysis reveals no trace of Oxygen in the Vita-Fresh can after packing.

Remember—Oxygen is the destroyer of coffee freshness and flavor. The Vita-Fresh Process alone gives full protection to coffee goodness. Maxwell House and Maxwell House only gives you this guarantee of full flavor, full value in every pound.

Engagement Announced At Bridge-Luncheon

The following item appearing in a recent issue of the Lampasas Leader, will be of interest to the many friends of George Shelton, son of Mrs. F. G. Cook of this city:

"Tuesday, September 1 at 1 o'clock Misses Helen Northington and Margaret Abney, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Abney, entertained with a bridge luncheon in honor of Miss Emily Frances Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Key who will become the bride of George Shelton of Paris, Texas, Saturday, September 26.

"A color scheme of silver and black was observed in the table markers and score card with rose carnations and ferns accentuating the color scheme of a three-course luncheon. Covers were laid for twenty-four guests. After four games of bridge high score was awarded to Miss Elizabeth Townsen. The guest prize to Miss Kay was black silhouettes on silver background representing the four seasons.

"At the request of Rebecca Ruth Abney the guests became quiet and a record especially prepared for this occasion being placed on the Victrola the strains of Lohengrin wedding march on the pipe organ pealed forth. The announcement and approaching marriage followed, the record concluding with Mendelssohn's recessional."

Miss Chartier and C. E. Newton Wed Sunday

The marriage of Miss Aileen Chartier, eldest daughter of Mrs. C. B. Chartier of this city to Charles Edward Newton of Albuquerque, N. M., took place at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joe Smith in Abilene. Dr. W. C. Ashford, pastor of the South Side Baptist church there, officiated in the presence of the bride's mother and a few friends.

The bride wore a navy blue velour suit with a white satin blouse and accessories in black. She carried an arm bouquet of asters and snap dragon and her only ornament was a gold chain which had been worn by Mrs. Chartier at her own wedding. Mrs. Smith, who wore black satin with white accessories, attended her sister ,and Mr. Smith served as best man.

After the ceremony, the couple left overland for Albuquerque to make their home, Mr. Newton being connected with the Albuquerque Gas and Electric company as heating engineer.

The bride is well known in Paris where she was reared, being for several years after graduation from the high school, in the employ of Griffiths and Freese as cashier, and for about four years, represented the home economics department of the Michigan Stove company of Detroit, Mich., holding cooking schools in Southwestern states and parts of Mexico.

ESSENTIALITY OF BIBLE IS THEME

R. L. Colley, Minister of Lamar Avenue Church of Christ, Preaches

R. L. Colley, minister of the Lamar Avenue Church of Christ, took for his theme Sunday morning "Are There Non-Essentials in the Bible, and If So, How May We Tell Them from the Essentials?" One of his opening statements was: "There is not a single non-essential in the whole Bible. I can take the same logic and prove that not a single statement in the Bible is true, as easily as any man can prove that some of the things contained therein are not essential. If I believed that some of the things contained in God's word were non-essential to mankind, I would raise the standard of infidelity and fight the whole scheme of redemption.

"What part of the Bible is true and applicable to mankind today, and what part of it is not true? What part is non essential? What does the term 'non-essential' mean? The definition for the word is 'not important.' If a large part of the Bible is not important, why did God clutter up so many useless pages in his will to man? Jesus warned again false teachers of his day, the same is applicable today, for such doctrines as these come from false teachers."

"Some men claim if a man does not belong to his particular denomination that it makes no particular difference, that it is not absolutely necessary to belong to the church to be saved anyway. This first part is true, for the Bible does not mention such a thing as a 'denomination' but it is impossible for a man to be saved unless he is "in Christ" and to get into him, one must be baptized into him, and when he is in Christ, he is in his 'body', his body being the church."

Mr. Colley stated that all men agree that all men must have faith, must repent of their sins and confess Christ in order to be saved but they "fly the track" when it comes to its being necessary for all men to be baptized in order to be saved. He inquired: "If baptism was a non-essential to the salvation of the people on the day of Pentecost, why did Peter command it?" Citing numerous other instances, he said, "If baptism is a non-essential then the opening and closing of Christ's active career were with the non-essentials, for he was himself baptized by John at the opening and just before his ascension he included it in his commission to his apostles. How is it possible for a man to come under the shadow of the cross and say that Christ's commands are non-essentials?"

"There are non-essentials connected with the religious activities of man," Mr. Colley pointed out, "but they are always outside the teachings of the New Testament. For instance, a dennmination is non-essential because the Bible does not mention one," and he enumerated a church creed, instrumental music in worship, infant baptism, ladies' aid societies and missionary societies as other non-essentials as well as "sprinkling and pouring for baptism because they were never practiced in the early days of the church and it only remained for a Catholic priest to introduce it as a 'mode' of baptism."

Mr. Colley closed his sermon by saying "I will challenge any man on earth, preacher or no preacher, to undertake to defend the doctrine of non-essentials in the New Testament before the public."

2,571 Doctors* Approve
Central American Rare Mountain Coffee

"Drink It Without Anxiety," They Say . . . . Far Finer Flavor Too, Because Free From Rank Offensive Oils

COFFEE is not only good, but good for you! If you drink the right KIND. This is what your doctor will tell you today. For the so-called ills of coffee such as nervousness, indigestion, and headache, they now find, actually come from certain noxious oils found largely in cheap, rank coffees.

But the world's finest coffee, the richest and most invigorating coffee, is free from these. Any normal person may drink all he wants within reason. And that is why thousands are changing to Folger's.

From Central America

Folger's is not just another brand of coffee. It is a different kind of coffee. There are thousands of brands of coffee in the market, but they most all come from practically the same place and are about the same grade. Folger's is made from Central American coffee—high-grown, which, experts and doctors agree, is free from the so-called coffee ills. And Folger's is packed in key-opening vacuum tins. Any can you buy is always fresh. As fresh as it was 30 minutes after it left the roaster.

Endorsed by Doctors

Only recently we received reports from 2,571 doctors* who, after testing samples of Folger's Coffee, confirm what we say above.

Try Folger's for a week. Note its finer flavor. Note its wonderful invigoration. Note its after effects. If you do this, we'll wager you'll never go back to ordinary and doubtful kinds of coffee.

*Signed statements to this effect, from 2,571 physicians who have actually tested Folger's Coffee, are on file in our offices.

GERMAN CRISIS PASSED

OPTIMISM of the department of commerce survey of the present financial position of Germany is in interesting contrast with the pessimistic tone of the Wiggin report and corrects false inference which might be drawn from the latter document.

Commercial attaches of the department of commerce at Berlin find a complete subsidence of the recent crisis; production and employment normal; banking restricted, but not substantially reduced, except for savings institutions, and adequate foreign exchange for importers.

These findings justify the conclusion that the measures of relief agreed upon by the nations which came to the rescue of Germany, and consequently of themselves, have proved effective. They also pay a deserving tribute to the orderliness and discipline of the German people in a grave crisis.

What the concert of nations set out to do was not to undertake a radical and permanent cure of the entire financial situation, of which Germany's troubles were only a part, but to prevent an immediate smash and secure the position over the coming winter.

If the status quo can be preserved until next spring, it is confidently believed that the world financial and credit structure will be strengthened by an improved world economic outlook.

UNCLE SAM'S SHIPS

RUGGED individualism should make sure, before it becomes too free and independent, that it will be rugged and not ragged, in adversity. In prosperity it is easy to speak in glowing tones of rugged individualism as opposed to paternalism and as above government charity, but when borasca succeeds bonanza it is easy to run to Uncle Sam for help.

During the years between the war and the depression, rugged individualists made it their business to get the government out of the shipping business. Government in business was not to be tolerated. But since the shipping business receded with the rest of the business structure they seem to have forgotten all about the virtues of the "American plan", which gives the individual free scope, unhampered by the government, to do and dare.

When there was money to be made with the United States shipping board vessels, private shipping interests wanted them and fought for them, until they got them, with a subsidy thrown in, for a song. But now the Atlantic shipping business has fallen off, the evil of government in business is forgotten, and the purchasers of the United States lines want to be unload them back on the government.

Sweet are the uses of adversity. It may yet give the United States a government owned and operated merchant marine.

THE THRILL SEEKERS

SOME recent airplane accidents indicate that youth's desire for thrills was a contributing cause. Young "joyriders" in the early days of the automobile had the same feeling about a new machine. "Stepping on the gas," chasing cows and chickens, spreading panic among buggy riders, "burning up the road," provide excitement. Traveling smoothly at a sedate pace lacked the essential kick. The throbbing machine was an invitation to try it out. Smash-ups were inevitable, and it was a blessing that the fast cars of today and the slow roads of that period were not contemporaneous.

The tyro of the air experiences the same reaction. His first airplane ride is devoid of breathtaking thrills and he is disappointed. The trip is without bumps or slides or loop-the-loops; riding in a taxi is more uneven. But for the dial in front of the pilot there would be nothing to indicate that the craft is beating through the air at a tremendous speed. So the passenger calls for stunts.

Perhaps the Guggenheim foundation had these air enthusiasts—their number is legion—in mind when it offered a prize for a "fool-proof" airplane. Four-wheel brakes and good roads save the necks of many "young fools" at the wheels of motor cars. It is more difficult when they take to the air.

ALL OF US

By Marshall Maslin

I SET MY THUMB AGAINST A BLADE THE BLOOD GUSHED FORTH THE WOUND HEALED ITSELF

I SET my thumb against a knife's sharp blade. The blade slipped, and its steel cut deep into the flesh.

There was sudden pain, and my flesh seemed to pause in shocked surprise. I snatched away the knife, and the red blood followed—and dripped, and gushed and fell.

Marshall Maslin

I poured iodine upon the wound, and it stung fircely and then I wrapped it in white gauze and tried to forget it. But all that day I bungled my work. My thumb throbbed and it pained me, and I feared it was infected and I would have trouble with it.

But the next morning, when I unwrapped the bandage—apprehensively—I found that already it was beginning to heal. And it was healing from within. The mouth of the small wound was open, but the deeper recesses were already joined. There was no ache; there was no fester.

Unordered, watchful, voluntary, a part of myself had already begun to heal the wound made by that sharp and alien steel. I had no part of it. I did not do it. Something within me, some inner health, had gone silently to healing my wound—and before the week was ended it was but a new scar and barely a memory.

And, were all my wounds to heal so easily, life would be sweeter than it is.

But the wounds of my pride fester and torment me. Superficially they heal, but deep within they throb and give me no rest. And when they heal at last they leave an ugly scar behind.

But the wounds of regret take years in the healing. And sometimes, when I think I am wholly well, I feel a reminiscent twinge where the knife struck home.

But the wounds that no man can see are the deepest of all and only the great antiseptic, Time, can heal them at last. For the mind is more foolish than the body, and is like a foolish child that will not be appeased and can not be persuaded that all is well and that wounds will heal themselves if only you let them be. And when shall I be as wise as the uncomplaining health, that so silently, so efficiently, went swiftly to work when I set my thumb against a knife's sharp blade?

THREE STATES REQUIRE AID BECAUSE OF DROUGHT AND GRASSHOPPER SIEGE

By Arthur M. Hyde
Secretary of Agriculture

AT least three states, Montana, North and South Dakota, will require federal aid as a result of drouth and grasshopper infestatiton.

A balance of approximately $15,000,000 is now available from appropriations made at the last session of congress for drouth loans and legal advisors, of the department of agriculture are now at work determining just how much of this fund may be used.

The greatest need by far at present and for the coming winter is feed for livestock. Relief organizations in stricken areas say they can take care of all human relief if the department can provide food for cattle.

There is some danger of a grasshopper problem later on in the summer, but as yet this condition is not serious.

The situation is not nearly so severe as last year's drouth in this section. It is entirely local and only some sections are badly hit.

Conditions are spotted, but where the drouth hit the situation is serious. I feel confident that we will be able to meet the relief needs of those districts which are the worst affected.

The situation differs from the drouth of last year in that only certain zones are stricken this year. Last year the drouth was much more widespread, covering 21 states.

By extending loans to the farmers, in the regions where crops are blighted, the government will aid them to carry their cattle through the winter. The machinery for making the loans is already established as the result of the federal drouth relief progrem of last spring.

THE FORTUNATE ORBIT OF THE EARTH

TO be located on a world in a solar system where the light and heat from the sun are of just the right proportions for stimulatting and encouraging life thereon is a most happy situation. Planet earth is so situated. Had its orbit been a little nearer the sun, the increase of solar heat would have made life sluggish and inferior. As it was in its earlier stages of tropical verdure, reptiles ruled the earth, and man could not have prospered. The Ice Age finally came and destroyed most of the reptile life and prepared the way for man. There is evidence that the world is still coming out of the Ice Age.

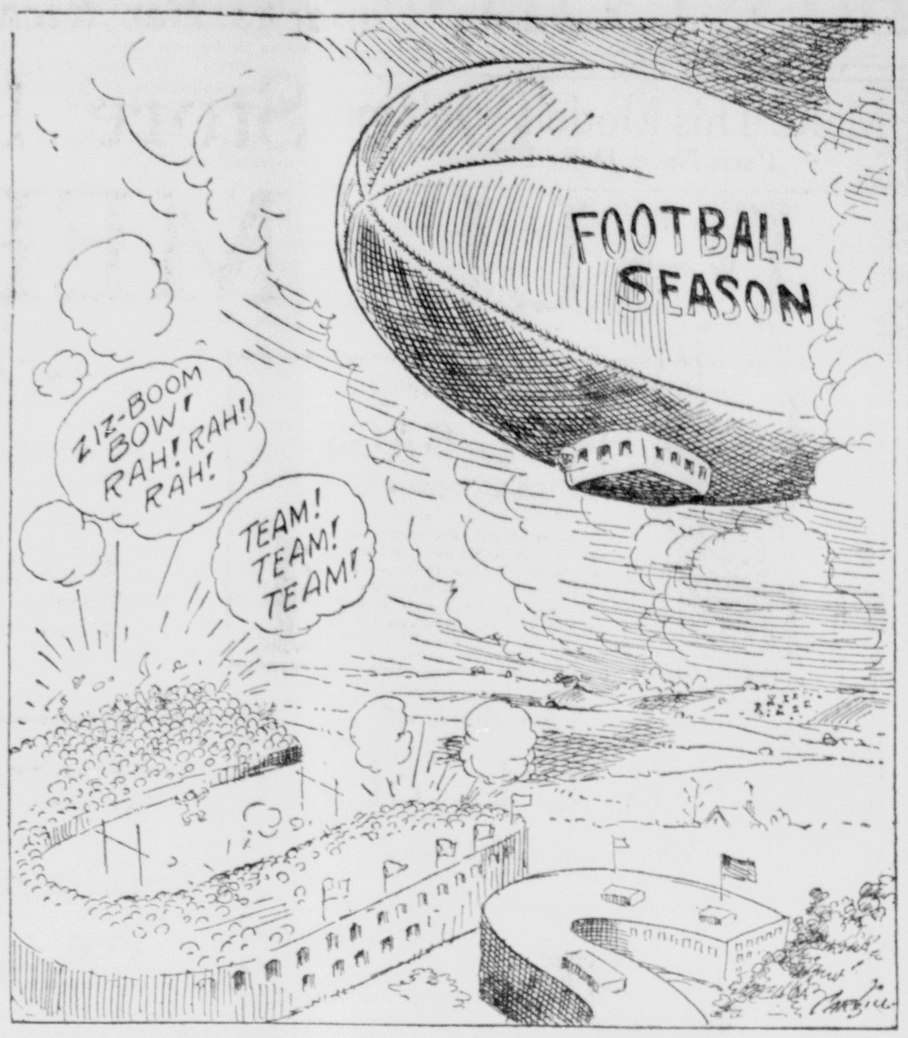
ANOTHER AIR LINER ON THE WAY



Comments From Contemporaries

SAN ANGELO TIMES

The criminal who carries a gun is in a different category than other lawbreakers. He is intrinsically a killer. When he appears in court that fact should be remembered And at least one judge in America has remembered, with rather surprising results.

County Judge Barnum of Syracuse, N. Y., almost always gives the gunman the limit. His comments usually are: "Although the court can often feel sympathy for the man who steals, the criminal who makes his living with a gun has no place in our society." Sentences of 40 years or more for holdup men are not unusual. And there are fewer holdups in Syracuse than in most other cities of the same size.

HONEY GROVE SIGNAL-CITIZEN

A cotton growing state, dressed in silk and wool, is the basic reason for the downfall of the cotton industry, according to Earl Earp, recently elected State Commander of the American Legion, and as a remedy for the situation Mr. Earp suggests that every Texan dress in cotton the coming year, which if carried out, would consume 6,000,000 bales of cotton. Cotton clothing is nothing new, but it just won't work. Like gold and silver is the basis of our money system silk and wool and their by-products is the basis of the clothing world. Cotton clothing can be made just as attractive as silk but until the basis is changed, men and women will demand something other than cotton to cover their bodies.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Direct descriptions of New York never seem to convey very much. If anything of the real flavor of the town ever washes into this space it is through snapshots of New Yorkers—of PEOPLE. A picture may beat 10,000 words, but a person beats fifty thousand. I want you to try to see a young woman who has always seemed to me to have more Manhattan about her than the skyline in the morning.

Her name is Katherine Brush. She is about as big as a minute and she has never gone without a manicure or worn the same gown two evenings running, even in the days when higher mathematics were required to see where her rent would come from, and three meals a day. She dreamed a dream of what New York ought to be like and she dreamed it so hard she made it come true.

Men in Two Classes.

She imagined that men in New York were divided, largely, into two classes: radiant, careless college boys who had too much money to spend spectacularly—and suave, always undismayed gentlemen who appeared at four o'clock into the yellow vistas of Park Ave., wearing canes and worldliness and small, white boutonnieres.

And those were the kinds of men she met. When her brother came down from Yale she rode with the entire college orchestra the length of Fifth Ave. atop a bus at midnight—while the air was rent with an impromptu serenade. When she fell in love it was, of course, with an immensely suave young international banker, who sent her three orchids every day . . . .

Katharine Brush demonstrated thoroughly that the realists are full of cheese. With one of the most romantic and totally unworkable theories of personal existence any woman ever had, she accomplished two extraordinary things: First, she lived successfully in the impossibly glittering and story-book manner and second, she wrote meanwhile a series of short stories which indicated that she laid aside her magic rose-colored glasses when she sat down at the typewriter. Her stories were often romantic, but all of them showed that she know how frightfully difficult it is to keep romance fluttering under the appalling damp blanket of every day.

Her girlhood and the years she spent in a small Ohio town remain largely blank for me, except for flashes in her stories. She arrived in Manhattan with saucer eyes and a photographic eye. In a week she knew how to dress; in a month she dressed better than anybody she knew. In six weeks she could walk into a restaurant without a man and people would look at her and wonder who she was while the headwaiter rushed her to the most desirable table. She was seldom, however, without a man; they flocked around her, fascinated by her tireless zest while hating her a little for her mind.

She wrote two novels for College Humor—and when the first installment of each was on the stands she had no idea how the story was going to end. Her writing had a quality, a singing quality, a furious nervous zest, which was destined to achieve for her another impossibility—equal attention from the editors of the "highbrow" and the large-circulation magazines.

Ray Long came to her for stories for Cosmopolitan. She sold to Harpers, to Pictorial Review, to Colliers, to Scribners. All the time she was getting more and more into the milieu of New York. She loved the town. She called her third novel "Young Man of Manhattan," and it scored one of the greatest—if not the greatest—successes of any serial ever printed by the Saturday Evening Post. Altogether, from movie rights, book sales and serial rights, I think she only made about $50,000 from this one.

This was a good beginning on the big time—no more. She had married the international banker now and returned from a honeymoon of premier suites, Isotta Fraschinis and Chanel gowns. She lived in a fourteen-room duplex apartment furnished in gleaming modernism. Her husband had his suite—she had hers; and this arrangement, a thoroughly unsound one of perpetual courtship in marriage, worked perfectly and continues to work.

"Red-Headed Woman."

Then—and I grow utterly giddy with this factual chronicle—she made up her mind to forget everything she knew about markets and saleability, matters whispered about more and more as the depression loomed, and write the best book she could. She wrote "Red-Headed Woman," a driving, untinted tale of a small-town adventuress' soul. The Post bought it for $40,000. And the movies—

But let's call a halt. Reading over what I have written I find almost everything I have said has a fantastic and unreal ring. It is true and it happened in New York, which accounts for the fantastic note. But I do not want to make Katharine Brush sound unreal. She may be a Water Myth, and often I am sure of it; but she is never unreal.

In the News 13 Years Ago

From the files of The Paris Morning News thirteen years ago today.

Monday, September 9, 1918

Persons in town from Oklahoma stated officers of McCurtain county were engaged in hunting for draft evaders, and that 78 men who had registered failed to appear when called for service.

Auto drivers and the machines they expected to use in the races at the fair grounds got to town. Three were from Dallas, two from Pittsburgh and one from Fort Worth.

The county commissioners appointed Virgil Thompson as constable for Precinct 7 in place of Mack Read who had resigned.

Among the service cars carrying visitors to the fair was a big Cadillac operated by a woman.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

After filing suit against M. P. Kelley, contractor for the first system of water works in Paris in June, 1888, the city council evidently rested on its oars. Law suits have a way of dragging along however, and there may have been some intimations of a compromise, for on Dec. 27 of that year Alderman C. N. Allen offered a resolution that the city suspend all resolutions and proceedings against Kelley, and Alderman J. C. Gibbons amended by calling for an ordinance to that effect, to be presented at next meeting. This was done and the ordinance was promptly tabled.

At a meeting Jan. 28, 1889, Alderman C. N. Allen, stating that several members of the council had visited the water supply station at Mud Springs and found the supply great increased, offered a motion that the mayor, two aldermen and the city attorney be appointed to confer with Kelley and see what agreement, if any, could be reached. The mayor named on this committee Aldermen J. C. Gibbons and J. D. Wortham. What this committee did, if anything, is not recorded, but from subsequent events it would appear they did nothing, or at least reached no conclusion.

In May 1889, the city government underwent almost a complete change. Under the new charter Mayor Wooldridge's term was cut to one year and M. J. Hathaway, who had been county judge and in the legislature, was elected mayor, the aldermen being E. Reuss, R. D. Hancock, Tip Hocker, J. P. Record, J. A. Drummond, S. Lynn, A. Cate and J. D. Wortham. Messrs. Cate and Wortham of Ward 4 were the only re-elected members.

Mayor Hathaway took hold of the water works problem at once, appointing Aldermen Wortham, Drummond and Record as a committee to confer with the contractor and recommend some plan for settlement if possible.

It was July 25 before this committee made a report, but it was of such a nature that it settled the water works controversy for the time, resulted in an agreement under a compromise that completed payment to the contractor and left the system under his control under the ten years lease that was a part of the contract. Broadly its finding were that the contractor had complied with all requirements except that of a sufficient water supply.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

General bodily conditions undoubtedly have something to do with the causation of acne.

Dr. Clendening

For the patient's sake however it should be remembered that this idea can be much exaggerated. When a severe case is seen people say—"My! his blood must be in an awful condition," or "Goodness that fellow has allowed himself to get terribly run down," or "He must lead a very dissipated life." The fact is the disease has nothing to do with blood disease in any acceptation of that term. (Diabetics sometimes have it, but diabetes is not a disease of the blood, strictly speaking.) And furthermore the acne patient probably eats much more abstemiously and pays better attention to the condition of the bowels than three-quarters of his critics.

He has to in order to keep the skin condition within bounds. Most patients have found that out. If they eat a meal or two of rich foods, or indulge in alcoholic excess, the skin always shows it. And to that extent general measures of systemic treatment are helpful.

The diet should avoid sweets, desserts and pastries. Also irritants and condiments, such as alcohol, chocolate, spiced foods and rich meats. Vegetables and fruits and bulky foods should form the staple of the diet, because these also tend to keep the bowels open.

Foods not allowed are: ice cream sodas, candy, rich gravies and pastries.

Foods to be avoided are: starches, such as potatoes, spaghetti, noodles and white bread.

Vegetables recommended are: Eggplant (stewed or grilled), cucumber (baked), brussels sprouts vegetable marrow, carrots (young), dandelion greens, Swiss chard, onions (boiled), mushrooms, parsnips tomatoes, spinach, artichokes, asparagus, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, kolrabi, oyster plant, pumpkins, radishes, rhubarb, turnips, beans, beets, celery, cresess, endive, greens, leeks, lettuce, peas, squash, sorrell.

Meat should be eaten only once a day. Weak coffee and tea are allowed at breakfast.

In the treatment of the constipation, if not relieved by the diet, a mild cathartic, such as cascara, can be employed. Yeast finds its most likely place in treatment in these conditions and, according to Dr. G. C. Andrews in a recent textbook on dermatology, "seems of most benefit in cases where constipation requires relief."

Tonics are often employed with relief and in combination with cathartics. Arsnic and nux vomica combined with rhubarb has been found especially valuable.

Doctors are often asked about the value of vaccines made from cultures of the pustules. In mild cases they unquestionably are beneficial. In chronic cases of long standing they do little if any good.

The employment of thyroid extract and other gladnular products has not proved of any demonstrable value.

As such treatment is expensive the patient should be warned against its limited usefulness.

Editor's Note: Four pamphlets and four articles by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes" and "Feminine Hygiene." The articles are "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Tuberculosis" and "The Atonic Abdominal Wall."

Guiding Your Child

HIS TEACHER

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The teacher has been trained for her job. No mere parent can rightly feel that she has anything to contribute to the way her child is taught to read or the method by which he learns his number combinations.

But learning lessons is not all there is to school. Learning to live and work with others is at least as important.

The good teacher wants to know the child not only as an intelligence but as a person. She wants to know the surest way to catch his interest and to find the motives that lie back of his conduct. Although she knows a great deal about him from the way he plays the ease with which he makes friends and the manner he makes he faces obstacles, she is often powerless to help him overcome some difficulty because the underlying reasons for the child's behavior are hidden in his home background of which she knows nothing.

Only the mother can give her the necessary insight into his attitudes. The mother can help her turn her observations to account by her more intimate knowledge of her child's feelings.

The mother should, therefore, take particular pains to know her child's teacher. She must take the initiative in establishing an honest and friendly understanding. She will find it worth while to spend some time at school and see the teacher on her job. Teachers, like other people like to feel that their work is interesting to others and that their efforts are appreciated.

If the teacher occasionally spends an evening at her pupil's home it will help the friendly relationship still further. The child, himself, will be pleased to have his teacher treated as a friend of the family. And teachers are human these days and often play a good game of bridge.

A good understanding between parent and teacher will certainly bring about wiser treatment of the child both at home and at school. Working together they stand the best chance of forming the child's habit and directing his responses in such ways that he will be a poised and happy individual.

Washington Daily Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—To understand understand what the government's plan is, to make financial ends meet, while spending at a rate more than two billions annually in excess of its income, is difficult.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon always has been commendably opposed to running into debt. He also has favored paying off the already outstanding national indebtedness as fast as possible. His detractors may say what they please about him, but he operated strictly in accordance with these perfectly sound economic principles until the slump hit the country and Uncle Sam's revenues abruptly fell off.

This misfortune having occurred, Mr. Mellon first tried to cut expenses. Failing (probably through no fault of his own, for governmental extravagance is almost uncontrollable), he said, in effect, "Very well, taxes must be increased."

Here again his logic was unassailable. There was a difference of opinion, however, as to the best and fairest method of replenishing the treasury adequately.

Those economists who profess to have the welfare of ordinary folk most at heart declared that the rich ought to carry the extra load.

Mr. Mellon replied that there are not many rich men; consequently taxing them does not bring in enough money. Besides, he argued, over-burdening them tends to make them scoop in their wealth and hide it, causing harder times than ever. On such grounds he advocated "broadening the taxation base;" that is, shaping the levies so as to catch as nearly everyone as possible.

Exponents of the rival philosophies agreed upon one point, anyway—upon the necessity for higher taxes.

They ought to be voted when congress meets next winter.

With practically no dissenters from the verdict that they are unavoidable, sooner or later, it may seem as if there should be no trouble in getting them voted. Nevertheless, there certainly will be, because politicians on both sides realize that they will be highly unpopular, and therefore are afraid to vote for them, with a national election right ahead.

Meanwhile, the treasury simply can't wait.

It ran into the hole $903,000,000 during the last fiscal year. It ran into the hole an additional $396,365,000 during the initial two months of the current fiscal year. It has enormous obligations falling due long before congress can do anything to relieve the situation unless it is called into special session, of which there is no prospect. Secretary Mellon must have cash, and lots of it, immediately.

Well, Uncle Sam's credit is good. He can borrow.

Still, considering Mr. Mellon's aversion to debts, one would think (would one not?) that he would borrow only just what he actually needs, for no more than just long enough to last him until congress can get together and boost the tax rate.

in public affairs of Texas would have occasioned the session. The weary legislators already had been in session 161 days this year, wrestling with problems of oil conservation and taxation. He indicated he favored a 50 per cent cotton acreage reduction in 1932.

The executive asserted the session "was called to aid an industry in distress—the basic industry of the state, materially affecting practically the entire population, directly or indirectly."

He added that "judging from appeals thousands have made to the chief executive in telegrams, letters, petitions, and resolutions, the majority favors a one-half reduction of cotton acreage next year as a means of decreasing the vast over-supply which has prostrated the cotton market and threatens an even more complete collapse."

Governor Sterling referred to the fact that cotton acreage reduction legislation was defeated in a special session about a month ago but added he felt "later developments have placed a new aspect upon the situation."

The governor said farmers were "long suffering and patient and seldom ask for special consideration" but appealed to the legislature to act because "they have risen in their distress and lifted their voices in most widespread and concerted demand that has moved them during modern years."

As a concluding appeal, he declared, "the present situation is an extraordinary one, calling for heroic measures in its solution. This is an hour when political and private considerations should be laid aside. x x x Patriotism dominated our thoughts and actions during the world war and should do no less now, the country's greatest crisis since then."

pound. He then would have this allocated to those farmers who agree not to plant next year, permitting the farmers to collect the difference between the 8 cents a pound and the prospective higher price in 1932.

The agriculture department's forecast of 15,685,000 bales was not unexpected in view of the August forecast of 15,584,000 bales and apparently the market was braced for it.

Commenting upon the forecast Tuesday, the agriculture department said the 1931 increase of 101,000 bales over the August report was due largely to lower than average abandonment of cotton. Another explanation of why the agricultural department expects the 1931 crop to be 1,753,000 bales more than the 1930 crop is the condition figure given in Tuesday's report. This was placed at 68 per cent of normal, as compared to 53.2 per cent on September 1, 1930, and a ten year average of 56.4.

He made two dashes before a 5 mile wind and two against.

The world land plane record was set in 1926 by the late Adjutant Bonnet of France, at 278.8 miles an hour. The American record was set the same year by Alford Williams, then a lieutenant in the U. S. navy, at 266 miles an hour.

Members of the advance crew advised with the Lamar District fair officials Tuesday and were assured of full co-operation by the fair.

CAPONE GETS

Under the original agreement with the prosecutors, it had been anticipated that Capone might receive sentences ranging from two to five years imprisonment on each of the indictments, the sentences to run concurrently.

When his case was called for trial, Capone's attorneys stressed this "understanding," only to receive a summary warning from Judge Wilkerson that he would not be bound by any such agreement, and his counsel promptly moved to withdraw Capone's plea.

Faces 34 Year Term

Tuesday, the judge said although compromises are legal under some circumstances, those concerned in the Capone case were not arrived at in "the manner prescribed by law."

Capone is now subject to a possible 34 years imprisonment and $90,000 fine. Maximum sentence on the liquor conspiracy count is two years. A 32-year sentence is possible under the income tax indictments, which charge delinquencies totaling approximately $2,000,000.

Immediately after Judge Wilkerson had granted the motion of Capone's counsel to change the plea, the gangster's lawyer, Michael Ahern, moved to quash the liquor indictment. Hearing on this was continued indefinitely and Judge Wilkerson set October 6 as the date for the scar-faced gang leader to go to trial on the income tax charge.

Unemployment Demonstration

While the vote was being taken a large crowd took part in an unemployment demonstration outside the houses of Parliament and nine persons were arrested when police cleared the streets.

These demonstrators sang the "Red Flag" and jeered mounted and foot police who attempted to restore traffic lines.

In the course of the debate Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Henderson and other leaders who explained their views were interrupted by hurrahs and sarcastic interjections.

The prime minister warned the members of the utmost necessity of stemming "the financial typhoon."

FARM NEWS OF THE WEEK

TEXAS FARMERS WILL SOW LESS WHEAT IN FALL

Intentions Reveal Acreage Reduction to Be Fourteen Per Cent

Reports received from Texas farmers reporting for their own farms, as of August 5, show intentions to sow an acreage of winter wheat this fall of 14 per cent less than sown last year. The acreage sown last fall was 3,843,000 acres. The intended reduction of 14 per cent would indicate an expected acreage this fall of 3,305,000 acres. As weather conditions and other causes may prevent farmers from carrying out their intentions, it may be expected that farmers may modify their plans if they find a change desirable.

Seedings of winter wheat in the United States this fall well be reduced 12 per cent below the acreage sown last fall if farmers generally carry out the intentions reported to the United States Department of Agriculture early in August. These reports indicate that farmers intend to sow 37,344,000 acres to winter wheat this fall, compared with 42,422,000 acres sown last fall. This is the smallest acreage reported as intended since intentions were first determined in 1923. It is the 4th successive year that acreage reported as intended has shown a decrease from that intended in the preceding year.

Even if this year's intentions are carried out in full it would mean the smallest acreage sown in any fall since 1914. Frequently however, weather conditions or other causes have prevented the seeding of the entire acreage intended. During the past eight years actual seedings in the country as a whole have averaged about 3 per cent below August intentions, seedings varying from 8 per cent below intentions in 1925, when seedings conditions were very unfavorable both in the eastern Corn Belt and on the Pacific coast to 3 per cent above intentions in 1923 when liberal fall rains encouraged farmers from Oklahoma north and they decreased the acreage less than they had originally intended. Last year, also the drouth was broken in time to permit farmers in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas to plant a substantially larger acreage than they planned in August. While moisture conditions in most of the southern plains area are better than they were a year ago, there are considerable areas in the western half of the country where the acreage is dependent on more liberal rainfall before planting time.

Garden Yields Large Returns

FLOYDADA, Sept. 8.—Last year Mrs. Ed Holmes of the Sand Hill community in Floyd county had a garden 75x30 feet. On this she raised 30 varieties of vegetables. Three hundred quarts were canned of which 68 were tomatoes and tomato juice. According to a report made to Miss Martha Faulkner, county home agent, her expenses for planting, caring for the garden and canning the products amounted to $23.70 and her profit on this investment was $95.

This year Mrs. Holmes has enlarged her garden plot to 75x60 feet. She has grown spinach three varieties of beans, mustard, cabbage, beets, squash, black-eyed peas, English peas, butter beans, tomatoes, carrots, corn, okra, cucumbers, onions and two perennials, asparagus and rhubarb.

Watermelons are being grown for use in preparing watermelon products as well as for present enjoyment and about 50 strawberry and dewberry plants supply the table well and a few over to can.

"We have fresh vegetables from May to frost every year. We expect to have a good fall garden. We have never gone in debt for any groceries," Mrs. Holmes said.

The first canning this year was English peas on June 5th, since then Mrs. Holmes has canned 45 No. 2 cans of beans; 8 cans of English peas; 15 cans of beets, 15 cans spinach; and 7 cans of okra.

Mrs Holmes has a new plot of ground for her garden and fertilizes about every other year with barnyard manure The garden is irrigated by water from a near-by well

The Holmes family have 14 cows and a number of the finest stock registered hogs. They canned 175 cans of beef and pork for last winter's use.

Trinity county sweet potato growers who did not treat their seed for black rot lost from 50 per cent to 70 per cent of the potatoes placed in beds ,and the untreated beds did not prouce as thrifty plants.

'School Wife' Balks

Charges by Miss Margaret Cox, Seattle art student and teacher, that Leonard Case, principal of the Hoquiam, Wash., school where she taught, forced her to sign an agreement to be his "school wife," have resulted in his forced resignation. Despite the fact that Case had a wife and four children, Miss Cox declares he made her promise to divorce herself from all friendship with other men. Although Miss Cox, above, refused to prosecute, police charged Case, inset, with disorderly conduct.

National Farm Outlook

Anyone who gets satisfaction out of saying "I told you so" is having a grand time over the troubles of the southern cotton grower and the mid-west wheat man.

Not only the farm board, but most economists and students of conditions warned the wheat and cotton farmers last year that production would have to be cut or prices would fall to unheard of depths. Some individuals paid attention to the warnings, particularly in the south, where cotton plantings were about 10 per cent smaller.

But many business men, politicians and some farm leaders ridiculed the advice, and advised planters to go ahead. "Nobody ever got rich by not producing," was the slogan widely repeated.

Of course farmers were actuated by many different motives. Some simply disbelieved in the existence of surpluses. Some gambled on the chance of a miracle which would reduce production, on action by the government, or on a vigorous revival of business and consuming power. Some counted on growing an extra big crop, expecting that the industry as a whole would cut down. Some were driven by necessity to produce as much as possible to meet obligations, regardless of what prices might be.

In other words, it would be a mistake to blame the wheat and cotton gluts on sheer dumbness or pigheaded stubbornness. It is much more complex than that.

In the case of cotton, it is the abnormally favorable weather, plus sub-normal insect and disease damage, that boosted the probable size of the 1931 crop, in spite of the smaller average.

But all this is now past history. It is what 1932 will bring forth that is beginning to agitate our minds. Cotton will not be planted for six months, but winter wheat will begin going into the ground within a couple of weeks. The farm world will watch with anxiety to see whether any lesson has been learned from 1931 disasters, or whether another huge flood of grain will be poured next year into a market that does not want it and will not pay for it.

To be sure, it is not too late for 1931 cotton planters to plow up a third of the crop, as the farm board suggested, or leave it unpicked in the field—which would be easier but not so conclusive. But few believe that there is enough mutual confidence and team-work among cotton men, os even among the cotton states, to make this practicable.

Miss Detherrow Unimproved.

Miss Beulah Detherrow, nurse at the Sanitarium of Paris, who has been ill the past two weeks, is unimproved.

Dip Of Cotton Seems To Balance Bull, Bear Forces

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8, (AP)—Cotton's dip to the second lowest point of the season September 4 seems to have balanced bull and bear forces so evenly that very little pressure could start prices up or down.

The average price of 5.99 for middling 7-8 inch on the 10 spot markets put cash values back to the August 20 level and next to the low mark at 5.89 August 19.

The latent demand for cotton goods is said to be greater than commonly appreciated and the policy of buying for immediate needs only apparently can not last much longer because stocks are so ill assorted that any improvement in retail trade will force better provision for store keeping.

The probability that further experiments may be made by the federal or state governments to improve the lot of the cotton producer suggests a holding movement to discourage bearish operations.

Meantime, the new crop is coming in slowly. Ginnings—475,834 bales on Sept. 5—are the smallest since 1920. About 1,879,919 bales had been ginned to the same date last year.

Private forecasts present a peculiar pattern, some contending there will be a crop of not more than 13,605,000 bales regardless of the government estimate which they expected to remained close to August figure. There are other estimates of 14,000,000 bales.

Generally, August brought good growing weather. The American cotton crop service indicates improvement in Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas, slight deterioration in Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana. September and October weather yet is to determine the crops in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee.

The trade represents Europe as holding off lest congress pass the export debenture which, if operated as previously proposed, would make it possible for exporters to sell cotton 2 cents a pound cheaper in Europe than it could be bought in the United States.

Hegari Profits Exceed Maize Test Reveals

Profits from an acre of hegari totaled approximately six times the profit from an acre of milo maize, although the crops were grown on similar land and received similar cultivation, according to the results of a comparative test demonstration conducted by Blake Bonham, Unity 4-H club member.

At a cost of $13 for both tracts Bonham realized a profit of $28.30 from the acre of hegari and $4 from the acre of milo maize.

The milo maize produced 1,200 pounds of heads valued at $3. The stalks, pastured by cattle, represented a value of $4. Cost of production was $3.

The hegari produced four tons of heads valued at $20. The st were cut with a row binder into 330 bundles, representing a value of $13.30. Cost of production was $10.

Values of the respective crops are established by marketing through the three beef calves which Bonham is raising in another 4-H demonstration.

In addition to the above demonstrations, Bonham is conducting poultry, Corn, peas, peanuts, pinto beans and Irish potato demonstrations.

Bronc Busters Of Wide Repute To Perform Here

Bronco busters who brought fame to their names in numerous state fairs and at the Fat Stock Show in Ft. Worth have been signed to perform in the rodeo at the Lamar District Free Fair "Foghorn" Clancy, who is to stage the grand stand feature, announced Tuesday.

Mettle of the outlaw buckers and the long horn steers will be tested in the Lamar rodeo. Among the bronc busters who have been signed for the rodeo are J. B. Turner of Ft. Worth, Dave Williams of Boise, Idaho, R. C. Curley of Ft. Worth and Red Woods, a Fat Stock show star.

Woods is said to be one of the toughest bronco busters of the lot. He has brought down many of the hardest. Last fall he won the bronc championship riding belt of the middle west at a contest in Prairie Du Chien, Wisconsin. The belt is estimated to be worth $500. It will probably be on display here. For the ride in that contest Woods received $1200.

FORMER PARISIAN DIES IN DALLAS

Friends here have received word of the death of Mrs. John G. Wilson of Dallas, former resident of Paris, who passed away Sunday night and was buried Monday in Dallas. Her husband, now practicing law in Dallas, was at one time owner of the Paris Commercial college here.

Mrs. Wilson was prominent in church and club circles of Oak Cliff in Dallas, during her twenty-three years' residence there.

Surviving her are her husband, one son, Joe Wilson of Dallas and a sister, Mrs. Johnnie Wilson of Annona. She was a sister-in-law of W. E. Knight of Dallas, and the late Dacy Wilson of Paris.

To Attend Funeral of Fred Lutes at Durant

Wes and C. W. Buster of Caviness left Tuesday for Durant, Ok., to attend the funeral of their niece's husband, Fred Lutes of Oklahoma City, who died Monday afternoon at Oklahoma City, following a major operation. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at Durant from the home of Mrs. A. W. Carter, Mrs. Lutes' mother.

Mrs. Lutes is remembered here as Miss Ruby Carter and she and her husband and their 17-year old son had visited here many times, Mr. Lutes having been in the city about a month ago.

THE BAT BAG
By Harry Cox

Lefty Loen Petit, whom Paris fans will recall as a classy left-hand pitcher, who could win any time he felt the urge to do so while working in a Paris uniform, hung up his 13th victory of the season last week while pitching for Quincy, in the Three-Ill league, owns a good fast ball, an excellent change of pace and a fast breaking curve ball. If Petit's head could be taught to work in conjunction with his arm and natural pitching staff he could win in any league. But that "if" is in the way.

Col. Tristam Speaker, some times known as the "Gray Eagle," who has participated in four world series contests, will broadcast during the world series. Tris, managing Cleveland, gave that city the only American league pennant it has ever enjoyed, and also the only world series. The Indians licked the Brooklyn Robins for the world's titular honors with Tris taking a very active part in the proceedings. It was in that series that Bill Wambangass pulled a triple play—the only time it has ever been done in a world series contest. Mr. Wambangass, like Speaker, is now numbered among the also runs.

Speaker was with the Boston Americans during their pennant winning days, playing center field like it has never been played before or since. Speaker, in his heyday, played both second base and center field, and was always up among the select set in hitters. He at one time also boasted the distinction of being the highest salaried player in the game. That was during the war with the Federal league. The Gray Eagle was sold to Cleveland for $50,000 and three players—at the time the largest amount ever paid for a ball player.

Speaker's home is at Hubbard City, or was. He lived on a ranch at that place in the fall and winter and until he became gray haired escaped the snares of matrimony, with his mother being his only sweetheart. Speaker's love for his mother was only one of his many sterling qualities, but this fact alone endeared him in the hearts of hundreds of thousands of baseball fans. Rick Adams and Bennie Shelton gave Tris his first job, and he drew the princely stipend of $50 per month when he signed his first contract. But in after years Tris could write his own terms.

And now it is being rumored about that Connie Mack is after the Great I Man, Artie Shires. It has been reported that Connie offered Milwaukee $20,000 and three players for the talkative Texan, and that if he lands him will shift Jimmie Foxx to third base and use Whattaman at first. The Chicago Cubs are also after Artie, and if they want him bad enough will land him. Mr. Wrigley, if he hasn't the money, can reduce the size of his chewing gum packages to make up for what he pays out for Shires.

Charles Arthur has done everything at Milwaukee that one ball player can do. He leads the league in fielding, leads it in batting and in runs driven in. And he has been doing so all season. The fans in Milwaukee come out to the park—not to see the Brewers, but to see Shires. He is a three-ringed circus and a rodeo combined, both on the field and off. So far Arthur has been contented to play ball and lay off the rough stuff—which is something new for the turbulent one.

Sliding into home plate the other day Charles Arthur was busted up something scandalous. But did he quit and go to the sidelines? He did not. "Bring out some tape and the arnica bottle and I'll be as good as new termorrer," Mr. Shires told the manager. And he did and he was. He hasn't missed but two games this year and that was not his fault. Shires should be a great drawing card for Connie Mack and his world champions. It has always been said that the A's lacked color, even in the old days. Artie could supply them with that commodity in large quantities.

Chick Howard, former Paris hurler, who was injured at Reading some weeks ago when the glass water jar fell on him, cutting his hand, celebrated his return to the game by pitching a shutout game. Chick has been a consistent winner with Reading all season, and may get a shot at the big league this fall. Jimmy Adair, a teammate of Chick's both at Reading and at Paris, has already advanced to the select set, and if his work keeps up, will stay there. Howard was picked up by Paris and cost them nothing. He was sold to Fort Worth for $1,000 and then returned here. If he makes the big league hurdle Howard will not be the only player that the Cats let slip through their fingers that afterwards made the big time.

Earl Snapp is going to help Hap Morse over at Dallas when the latter opens his training school for kids on September 15. The writer doesn't know anything about the managerial ability of Morse, or his ability to impart knowledge to the youngsters, but we do know, and all Paris knows, that as a developer of ball players Red Snapp has no equal in the minors. Just why he has not been the head of some Texas league club remains another of those great unsolved mysteries of baseball. Certainly it has not been through any lack of knowledge.

College Paper Printed Tuesday

For the first time under its new management "The Bat" student publication of Paris Junior college was issued Tuesday morning as a greeting to students enrolling in the Paris college. Thomas Graham is editor in chief of the paper and Lloyd Falls business manager.

The publication is larger than the one published last year. This year it is 6 columns by 19 inches which is the size most colleges use for their student papers. Peerles Printing company now has the contract for printing the sheet. Its staff is composed of members of the journalism class at the college and chosen members.

Business manager Falls said recently the staff intended to put the paper out regularly and to build up a circulation in and out of Paris.

CHAPTER 6

"Natalie here—she's my little sister—thinks you are my secret romance," Nita told Charles Young in her most winning way. That was how she introduced him.

"Isn't he?" interrupted Natalie, not looking in the least like a little sister.

"Not secret any more, though." "Oh, now I remember you!" exclaimed Natalie extending him her small hand. "Why Nita! How did you manage all this?" Turning to the tall fellow with shining black hair and very nice blue eyes Natalie continued: You sat across the aisle when we came on from Tuesdale . . . you and the magazine."

"I remember, too," he said, not at all shyly, giving her a winning smile which for the most part spent itself on Nita.

Charles Young represented the dashing, nonchalant type of handsome young fellow about New York, especially well known in the theatrical booking offices.

"How did this romance begin—it is a romance, already—I take it?" Natalie persisted.

But Nita didnt talk so much. She had heard it was some times best not to—and besides, she didnt need to talk much. She let the violet chiffon, so exquisitely designed, speak for her.

"Well, when I gave her the magazine on the train the romance started, in fact, it had started some minutes before that—but it did not get a chance to continue until today."

"When," Nita put in, "I went into the Dubard Theatrical Agency to sob on somebody's shoulder because New York had not given me a crooning job."

Nita's smiles were by no means wasted on the blue-eyed man, who soon became known as "Charles."

He produced a silver hip flask and asked for some glasses. The girls were a little embarrassed because they had no cracked ice to offer—but it was Charles who was embarrassed when both of them refused to join him with a drink.

They soon were to learn that the hip flask was just an old Manhattan custom and was not intended as any reflection on them.

"Only," continued Charles, making himself quite at home in the arm chair, and resting his eyes on Nita, "she didn't cry on my shoulder. I was glad, though. I don't think a tear would look well depending from her nose."

"No! That's what I decided," laughed Nita.

"Did you sing for him?" put in Natalie.

"Yes— I hope you didn't think I was crying by any chance—then," she turned to Charles, who was obviously amused.

"I've heard funny noises before."

"So, Natalie, he advised me to take up tap dancing."

"How did this romance begin?"

They all had to laugh at that remark.

Nita was trying herself. She was flattered by the approval in Charles Young's blue eyes when they took her in. She managed to stride across the room so he might see her lovely stilted, glistening heels, the close fit about her slim, rounded hips. His eyes followed her. Nita was a success with Charles Young. That was more than plain.

Charles Young's approval of Nita was to mean much to her. She had figured that all out ,however. Charles owned a partnership in the Dubard Theatrical Agency and he had no end of contracts that could—and did—prove useful to Nita, who had no way of becoming acquainted with theatrical circles.

Once Charles said to Nita: "When you smile you look like a Flagg drawing."

He fell a little in love with her, even that first night . . . her freshness, her play at sophistication, the way she got smoke in her eyes from an awkwardly held cigarette.

Because as soon as Natalie left the room for a moment Nita said: "May I have one of your smokes?" Casually as if she were accustomed to that sort of thing. She had seen the girls in Sherry's smoking —and thought how smart and nonchalant they looked with a cigarette, plumed with smoke, poised in their red-enameled nailed fingers.

"You don't smoke—do you?" Charles had asked, seeing that she held the cigarette awkwardly and that her eyes kept misting from the smoke.

"I mean to—one has to start, doesn't one?" she said, a little flippantly.

"I wish you wouldn't. I think I liked you because there was no nicotine stains on your fingers."

"But it marks one—I mean, not smoking. In New York—you know, do as the smart New Yorker does."

"You are smarter than the smart New Yorker." But Nita did not cast aside her cigarette.

When Charles Young came along naturally Natalie stepped aside. But perhaps not without noting with a tinge of envy the way he laughed at Nita's wise cracks, her newly coined slang which fit her so badly, and her pretended cynicism, which her sparkling eyes and smiling lips belied.

The violet chiffon and silver slippers were not bought in vain and left on the closet shelf to dull with age and tarnish.

Charles Young had come out with an idea, that first night.

"Would you like to croon a tune or two at a night club?" he asked it so calmly, flicking the ash from his cigarette.

But the very thought of it made Nita's heart do a duck'n wing. And Natalie could not believe her ears.

"It belongs to a friend of mine, Anthony Widdles. Maybe you've heard of him?"

They had heard of Anthony Widdies. Who hadn't. He owned the Palace Gardens, Manhattan's very smartest after-dark playground. They used to read about the parties given there even when they lived in Truesdale. And the New York columnists were always saying something about Mayor Walker and other importnat folk being seen there.

Nita seemed very calm, as though she had expected just that sort of thing to pop up.

"I'll have no fear of your having stage fright. Not after this afternoon before all of those troupers, the severest of the severe critics," Charles told Nita.

"They were nice, though—generous, I mean."

"They recognized that you had something different."

Nita had chills and fears every time she remembered singing that number before Charles Young that afternoon at the agency. He had asked her to "give an audition." She hadn't exactly understood what that meant until he said that a girl he called Maizie, who had her hair cut like a boy's would play the piano for her.

Somehow she managed to get through with that real blues tune —"I Lost My Girl from Memphis."

"I pretended to myself that those troupers sitting there listening and looking were just a bunch of Truesdale rubes," she afterwards explained to Natalie. "But what made it better was that I knew when I finished that no matthow badly I put it over that they would not high-hat me the way the rubes in Truesdale did that time I joined that act at the Play House."

So, now Charles Young wanted to know if she would croon a tune at the Palace Gardens!

"When?" Nita's voice was so calm.

"Tonight, of course?"

"Oh."

"Would you like to look the place over first?" he thought she didn't know what the Palace Gardens was!

"Oh, I know about the Gardens," she said, still calm. "I think I'd like that," she added, smiling faintly.

"We won't go until about midnight as it'll be practically dead before then," he explained. "You know, I think you'd look like Helen Morgan if you had a piano to sit on. You'll be a wow. Just wait until New York begins to know you."

Nita smiled—not an aggressive smile, but the sort of sweet, demure, appreciative smile you would expect from a girl you could fall in love with the first night you called to see her; that was what Charles Young had done—already.

"I think I can do a lot for you," he said, his eyes sort of feasting on Nita.

Nita had thought as much. He had told her he had been a press agent before he bought out a partnership in the agency. Nita had her ideas about the benefit of publicity long before she came to New York. Yes, Charles could do a lot for her—and he would do more if he fell in love with her . . .

An ordinance regulating boating on Lake Crook, providing rules and regulations therefor, prescribing penalties and declaring an emergency.

WHEREAS a number of our citizens, who are owners of boats, have been keeping and using same on the waters of Lake Crook, and it is thought necessary for the protection of said waters of Lake Crook and to prevent pollution thereof, as well as to afford protection to the owners of said boats and other citizens, that regulations be made with that end in view,

THEREFORE, be it ordained by the city council of the City of Paris.

Section I

Hereafter, all persons owning boats and desiring to use said boats upon the waters of Lake Crook, are authorized to do so upon compliance by them with the following rules and regulations.

(a) Every such person shall make a written application for permission to keep a boat on Lake Crook and use the waters thereof for boating purposes.

If applicant desires to construct a suitable boat house on Lake premises in which to keep his boat, he shall so state in his application.

The application shall be signed and in addition to the foregoing show:

(1) The name and exact address of the applicant;

(2) The name, kind character, and capacity of the boat desired to be kept and used by him on the waters of Lake Crook;

(3) That his boat, if a motor or sail boat, is equipped with life preservers or specially constructed cushions adequate for the purpose for each person intended to be carried in said boat, said life preservers or cushions to be examined and approved by the city engineer;

(4) That at least two cuspidors have been provided for the use of the occupants of the boat;

(5) That the boat is provided with a suitable colored light or running lights, same to be kept lighted when boat is used at night, or that boat is not to be used at night;

(6) That he will be responsible for all injury done to the person or property of any other person, by any one in charge of, or operating said boat;

(7) That he will not permit any person or persons under age of 18 years to use or operate said boat on the waters of Lake Crook;

(8) That he will at all times when said boat is not in actual use keep same securely fastened in one of the places on the shore designated and marked by the city of Paris, or in his boat house;

(9) That he will or will not construct at his own expense at a place on Lake Crook within the territory hereinafter designated, at a place to be assigned to him by the city engineer, a suitable boat house, neat in appearance and in keeping with the surrounding boat houses;

(10) Plans of said boat house to be submitted to and approved by the city engineer.

(11) That he will at all times keep said boat clean and sanitary, and will in no manner pollute the water of Lake Crook, or permit any other person using said boat to pollute same, and strictly observe and obey all sanitary regulations govering said lake and watershed and any and all other regulations that may hereafter be prescribed by ordinances;

(12) That he will cause to be painted on the sides of his boat, the number assigned to him by the city engineer, said number to be 8 inches by 8 inches, of a color which is plainly visible;

(13) That he will, at his own expense paint the assigned number on the sides of the boat house, if granted one.

(14) That he will use care and skill in the operation of his said boat and will not so operate same in a manner, or at a place on said lake, where it will interfere with fishermen or others legitimately using said lake.

Section II

The city council shall designate and set apart, suitable portions of the lake shore to be used by boat owners for purposes of constructing boat houses thereon, and suitable portions of said lake shore for purpose of harboring and keeping boats or for both purposes.

The mayor and city engineer shall properly and adequately mark the portions of the lake shore so selected and set apart, and, when so marked, any boat not in use and found without said premises may be confiscated by the city or required to be removed from premises by owner and permit cancelled.

Section III

When application called for in section 1 hereof is filed with the city secretary, he shall register the name of the applicant in a suitable book for the register of the owners of boat and show date same was filed and the name and capacity of said boat and refer to the city engineer, who shall inspect said boat and see that it is equipped in accordance with provisions of section one hereof. He shall also inspect the plans submitted for the proposed boat house, if any, to ascertain if provisions of same reasonably comply with provisions of section one hereof. If application is in accordance with section one hereof, he shall set apart to the applicant a suitable portion of the territory hereinbefore designated for the keeping and harboring boats or the construction of the boat houses, mark his approval of said application and location of boat house on the application, signing his name thereto, and giving date of approval, and file same with the city secretary, who shall note the date of the approval on register of boat owners and refile said application in the secretary's office. Said applicant from that date shall be authorized to keep his boat on said lake, and, if boat house desired, construct his said boat house, and use the waters of Lake Crook for boating purposes under the provisions of this ordinance.

Section IV

It shall be unlawful for any person, other than the owner of the boat, to break into any boat house or to break the chain or lock securing any boat to a boathouse or other anchorage on the Lake Crook premises. It shall be unlawful for any person to use a boat or boathouse without first making and having granted an application as set out in section one. It shall be unlawful for any person to use a boat or boat house without permission of the owner. It shall be unlawful for any person under 18 years of age to use or operate any boat or boats on the waters of Lake Crook, unless accompanied by an adult experienced in the operation thereof. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to, in any manner, throw, cast or permit to be thrown or cast, any substance, or matter whatsoever on the water shed or in the waters of Lake Crook that would in any manner pollute the water.

Section V

It is expressly declared herein that the city of Paris in no manner assumes any responsibility to any person whatsoever for any damage or injury to any person, or to any boat, boat house or equipment or to either, and that said boats and boat houses are erected, constructed and maintained on Lake Crook at the sole risk of the respective owners thereof.

Section VI

All owners of boats, who now make use of portion of Lake Crook for boat houses and the waters of Lake Crook for boating purposes, are required within ten days after the passage of this ordinance, to make applications in accordance with the provisions of section one hereof. Each and every applicant granted use of lake and premises under this ordinance, shall be held to accept and agree to all of the provisions of this ordinance and pledged to comply with provisions of all ordinances heretofore or hereafter passed regulating sanitary conditions on lake premises.

Section VII

Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall on conviction of same in the corporation court, be fined in any sum not to exceed $200.

Section VIII

That this ordinance take effect from and after its passage.

The fact that boating, as now being conducted on Lake Crook, is dangerous and may result in the loss of life, and that there is immediate necessity for proper regulations governing same, creates a public emergency requiring that the rules and charter provisions prohibiting the passage of an ordinance at the meeting introduced be suspended the same is accordingly done and this ordinance will take effect from and after its passage.

Adopted: 5 ayes, no nays, Sept. 1, 1931.
Approved, Sept. 1, 1931.
J. M. CROOK, Mayor.
Attest: Mrs. Odous Park, City Secretary.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The government crop report placing the indicated cotton production as of Sept. 1 at 15,685,000 bales, or slightly above average expectations was followed by liquidation which sent prices into new low ground for the season. The decline was checked, however, by trade buying or covering which caused later recoveries.

December closed at 6.88, or a point above last Friday's closing quotations, with the general market closing steady with net advances of 1 to 3 points.

October sold up from 6.62 to 6.69 and March from 7.14 to 7.22 on this demand, but the bulges met liquidation which seemed to be coming partly through Wall street sources and the market eased off a few points before the market closed to receive the government report.

The report of the census bureau showing 565,160 bales ginned prior to Sept. 1 was a shade above some of the recent private estimates ,but small enough as compared with last year's ginnings of 1,879,919 bales for the same period, to re-emphasize the latness of the crop. The increase in the official crop estimate as compared with the Aug 1 indication was attributed to less than average abandonment of acreage since the beginning of July.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8. (AP)—Unusual activity marked Tuesday, bureau day, in the cotton market here, but the government forecast of 15,685,000 bales, 101,000 bales above the record crop forecast of August, was about as traders expected and failed to fluctuate the market radically. At the close, prices were one point up to three points down in comparison to the previous close. Trade buying in anticipation of Southern legislation for 1932 crop curtailment counterbalanced the 15 to 18 point decline that followed on the heels of the estimate and wiped out the loss before the close of the market.

Liverpool came in 3 to 5 penny points better than due and private cables stated that there was continental covering and Bombay selling but that hedging was light. Manchester cabled that the market there was inactive awaiting the bureau report.

The international federation of spinners placed the world consumption of American cotton for the 1930-31 season at 10,907,000 bales against 13,023,000 the previous season and total all kinds 22,483,000 bales against 25,209,000 previous season.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 8. (AP)—Faced by blackboards showing a fall in securities, with United States Steel at new bottom quotations grain pits witnessed a general decline Tuesday. Corn suffered the most, September delivery showing 2 1-4 cents a bushel setback. Reports from Germany that grain crops there were rotting in the fields failed to bring about any decided rally.

Corn closed nervous, 3-4 to 1 3-4 cents down, wheat 1-8 to 7-8 off, and oats at 3-8 to 3-4 decline, provisions finished 2 to 12 cents up.

Down swing of grain came after an early show of strength that was associated with European reports of heavy rains and of unseasonable conditions. There were also indications that export demand for North American wheat was of at least fair volume, that Germany was inquiring for a 3-year credit purchase of 17,000,000 bushels of United States government financed wheat and that estimates of Russia's exportable wheat surplus had been reduced to 60,000,000 bushels compared with recent forecasts of 120,000,000 bushels.

Closing indemnities, wheat, Sept. 48 5-8 offers; Dec. 48 1-8 to 1-4, 49; May 53, 53 3-4. Corn Sept. 41 1-2, 43 5-8; Dec. 37 7-8, 38 5-8 to 3-4; March 41 offers; May 42 3-8 to 43 1-4.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—Returning to action after a three-day shutdown, the financial markets found an accumulation of pessimism that induced heavier selling of stocks, lower prices for railroad bonds and a sag in commodity quotations.

Equity issues, according to the Standard Statistics composite, lost 3.3 points net, the largest decline since July 29. Trading was active in the morning and although it was relatively dull for the rest of the day, sales totaled 2,013,560 shares, considerably larger than the recent average.

Weakness was especially evident among the rails, utilities and steels Some covering at the close reduced extreme losses of 2 to 8 points in an assortment of representative issues; that there was any recovery appeared due to short covering and the fact that Western Union directors declared the regular quarterly dividend in the last few minutes of the session's life.

Earlier in the day, the cut in New Haven's quarterly payment, although expected, helped soften the rails, most of which were weak.

Fort Worth Livestock

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Hogs, 300, including 58 directs. Truck hogs mostly 10c higher, some sales 20c higher; no rail hogs offered; bulk good to choice 170-240 pound truck hogs 6.35; packing sows steady to quarter higher, mostly 4.50 to 4.75.

Cattle 2,500; slaughter steers dull and weak; offerings of value to sell around 4.50 to 7.00; general trade in other classes cattle about steady but demand rather quiet; good fat cows 3.50 to 3.75; butcher grades 2.25; low cutters 1.50 to 1.85; good 2 year old stock steers 5.25 3.00 and less; cutter cows 2.00 to steady; slaughter calves mostly steady, good strong weights and heavies 4.50 to 5.00.

Sheep 1,200; fat lambs weak to 15c lower, practically no wethers offered; about six decks fat lambs 5.50 to 5.75; fresh short fat yearlings 4.25.

Give me P.A.
and the papers every time

2 full ounces in every Tin
Rolls easy and stays put

I get more kick out of rolling my own with Prince Albert. So simple too — you just put a fingerful into a paper and roll—then you're all set for the grandest home-made smoke you ever tasted. They're rolled in a jiffy—and that means it is easier and the tobacco stays put.

Your nose will tell you how downright good this fragrant tobacco is. Then light up and get that cool, smooth, mild, full-bodied P.A. flavor. Your first P.A. cigarette will make you and Prince Albert friends for keeps. Its delightful satisfying taste will win you. P.A. is great in a pipe, too. Try it.

—NEXT TO P.A. THE RIGHT PAPERS. Straight from France, the home of the world's finest cigarette-papers—straight from the famous factories of Bolloré, for more than a hundred years maker of the world's finest cigarette-papers, come OCB's, made expressly for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company—and YOU. Book of 150 leaves, 5¢, at the store where you get good old P.A.
